13. Training

a. A new full-time three-week course in the collection of ELINT information began on 5 October. The objectives of this course are to teach Agency case officers the basic principles and managerial responsibilities of ELINT collection. The Scientific and Technical Collection Course was increased from three to four weeks to accommodate a carefully planned and selected series of visits to missile bases, bacteriological warfare and nuclear installations. The old Clandestine Political Warfare Course was completely reconst to support current priority Agency objectives in the political action, economic action, covert propaganda, and covert limited warfare fields. This program is now known as the Covert Action Operations Course.

b. A successful instructor training program was conducted, which included four weeks of speech and conference techniques for OER faculty members and intensive orientation for all new instructors. The training evaluation and support functions formerly performed as a centralized service were decentralized, affording closer continuing support to the individual faculty members. Psychologists performing these functions have been transferred to the direct supervision of the School Chiefs. It is anticipated this change will result in closer integration of educational support activities into the individual courses.
